RACE ANALYSIS

The card kicks off with low level maiden claiming horses on the turf. These are always the toughest races to get right, while this field is full of horses that just aren't very good on paper. This might be a nice race to skip as the rest of the card is much better. Betting Recommendation: 0-5% of your bankroll; small wager.

RACE ANALYSIS

It will be interesting to see #8 Wickline back for his second race after he dominated on debut at Los Alamitos on June 24, 2023, for Bob Baffert. Obviously, a lot has gone wrong with him since, which is why you see him running here for Russell. Irad gets aboard, though, which means this one is probably ready to fire. Betting Recommendation: 0-5% of your bankroll; small wager.

RACE ANALYSIS

This lower level turf claiming event is full of decent horses, with the favorite #14 Justintimeforwine drawing all the way to the far outside. This is about as evenly matched as it gets, with most of these looking like they have a chance, so playing a small exotic wager could turn into a nice score with a little bit of luck. Betting Recommendation: 0-5% of your bankroll; small wager.

RACE ANALYSIS

The New Jersey breders take center stage in this event, which has drawn a strong field of ten runners. This is yet another race that seems wide-open on paper, while the NJ breders are usually a tad inconsistent in general. This makes for another small wager as we wait for the better caliber races coming up soon on the card. Betting Recommendation: 0-5% of your bankroll; small wager.

RACE ANALYSIS

This is one of the better betting races on the card. Six of the seven entries are between 3-1 and 4-1 on the morning line, which shows you the similarities of these horses. We both like #1 Delahaye quite a bit, and at the price of 7/2 she makes a lot of sense. She beat tougher horses than this last time out at Churchill Downs. Betting Recommendations: 5-10% of your bankroll keying #1 Delahaye or betting a win depending on the price.

RACE ANALYSIS

If #6 Idiomatic loses this race it would be a major surprise. She was defeated last time out for the first time in over a year; however, this field is not as good as what she faced in her last start. This should be a walk in the park for the heavy favorite. Betting Recommendation: 15-20% of your bankroll singling #6 Idiomatic in exacta/trifecta OR multi-race wagers.

RACE ANALYSIS

This tough turf allowance features a full field of 14 runners in what should be a completely wide-open affair. The favorite is #5 Lady Madonna, who is 7/2, which shows you how closely these horses are matched. This seems to be a "tread lightly" spot. Betting Recommendation: 0-5% of your bankroll; small wager.

RACE ANALYSIS

We'll see if Saffie Joseph, Jr. can keep his hot streak going with #8 Dilger, who makes his first start since running third in the Lexington Stakes (G3) at Keeneland. This will serve as a nice drop in class for him, while many of the horses in this have been running at this level #8 Dilger could outclass this group today. Betting Recommendation: 0-5% of your bankroll; small wager.

RACE ANALYSIS

It's exciting to see Arzak back, who finished second behind Cogburn last time out, who set a North American turf sprint record in the Jaipur Stakes (G1) at Saratoga. The third place finisher in that race was Star of Mystery, who came back to dominate the Quick Call Stakes (G3) in her next start. Betting Recommendation: 10-15% of your bankroll singling #5 Arzak in exotic plays or betting a win depending on the price.

RACE ANALYSIS

#3 Highland Falls seems to be perfectly suited for races of this caliber, which was put on full display last time out when he won the Blame Stakes (G3) at Churchill Downs. #8 Tapit Trice will be the main challenger; however, he has scratched twice this year after being entered into races. We'll see if he actually runs today. Betting Recommendation: 10-15% of your bankroll singling #3 Highland Falls in exotic plays or betting a win depending on the price.

3. #2 Emmanuel
4. #11 Starting Over

RACE ANALYSIS

This is the most wide-open of all the stakes races on the card. #12 Far Bridge is the favorite; however, there are several that can jump up and win this one. It's hard to pick out just one horse to play, so an exacta or trifecta using multiple horses that we both like seems to be the right play. Betting Recommendation: 5-10% of your bankroll; try to combine some of our choices in a nice exotic wager.

RACE ANALYSIS

This year's Haskell Stakes (G1) did not draw the greatest field; however, it did draw the most talented 3-year-old male in the country. #7 Mindframe looked like a winner last time out in the Belmont Stakes (G1) before he drifted badly in the stretch. If they can correct that he is definitely the horse to beat in this spot. Betting Recommendation: 10-15% of your bankroll singling #7 Mindframe in exotic plays or betting a win depending on the price.

RACE ANALYSIS

The action continues with two more non-stakes events to end the card, including this turf allowance going one-mile. Like most of the non-stakes races, this is one that seems fairly wide-open on paper. You need to go as deep as possibly in your multi-race plays. Betting Recommendation: 0-5% of your bankroll; small wager.
