PACE ANALYSIS

Pure Speed: Ranger Battalion

Pressing Speed: Bulldoze, Thorsness, Up for an Oscar

Stalkers: Wakan, More Therapy, Dublin's Knight

Closers: Peak Performer, Kunan, Interim Analysis, Love That Symphony, Deep Dusk

Summary: We'll kick off the event with a solid maiden race on the turf, which seems to run. Gulfstream Park is a track where you need to be close to the front, especially on the turf, so don't automatically assume a horse will win from behind if the pace looks hot on paper.

#4 Kunan Seems to be ultra-consistent in his work patterns leading up to this debut.

TRENDING DOWN

#7 More Therapy: It doesn't look like he's picked it up much since changing trainers.

#6 Bulldoze: His last two works signal he's ready for his debut race.

#8 Thorsness: He doesn't look to be working as well as his stablemate.

#11 Up for an Oscar: Working like a Chad Brown horse that might have a little speed early.

#10 Deep Dusk: Has been pretty slow in several 4-furlong works.

BET ANALYSIS

In a race with this many first time starters, it's always a guess as to who will show up ready to run. I liked the workout pattern on #6 Bulldoze, so I played him on top. #4 Kunan and #11 Up for an Oscar are two others that look to be decent first time starters. I'm also banking on #2 Ranger Battalion improving on the grass.

BET ANALYSIS

There's more questions than answers to kick off the card. Maidens going two-turns on the turf, and most of the interesting horses are first time starters. No thank you, I'll pass on wagering much in this race and wait for better spots. There are plenty of good betting races on the card.

PACE ANALYSIS

Pure Speed: Disruptor, Bob Mo

Pressing Speed: Tempus Prime, Santal

Stalkers: Plex, Jimmy's Dailys

Summary: The maiden special weight races will continue in race two, which is full of first time starters. That makes the pace hard to determine; however, look for a few of these to gun out of the gate early. A hot pace could ensue if we see that happen.

RACING DUDES

WORKOUT ANALYSIS

TRENDING DOWN

#1 Handsome Fox: Hasn't been overly impressive in any of his works leading up to his debut race.

This is another race with mostly first time starters. It's always a bit of an educated guess, but #5 Disruptor has solid connections and a nice work out pattern. I'll rely on him mostly, and play a win, and then maybe play some smaller exotics with some of the more established runners.

BET ANALYSIS

The infamous maiden special weight on Pegasus World Cup Day! It has produced flops like Hidden Scroll, and also Kentucky Derby winners like Mage. One thing is for sure: this race has always been hard to handicap. Invest a small amount and move on, who knows with these first time starters.

Summary: A hot early pace seems to be the theme to start the card on Saturday. This is another race where there is a lot of speed signed on to run, so the mid-pack and closers could have the advantage in this spot. Several of these runners do their best when near the lead.

RACING DUDES

WORKOUT ANALYSIS

TRENDING DOWN

#2 Atone: His pattern is lackluster, but he's never been the best work horse.

This race is pretty insane on paper, so I went with a price and picked #9 Saratoga Flash. His race two starts back is good enough to win this one, and I think he'll enjoy the cut back in distance. However, this race is full of horses that can win on their best day.

BET ANALYSIS

These early races are tough to figure, so I'll mainly save my bullets for the better quality races on the card. Just a small trifecta for me as I couldn't get any kind of read on what might happen with these mainly below average horses. There will be better races later on the card.

Summary: After three races with projected hot paces, this one is the exact opposite. #7 Dana's Beauty should be alone up front with a clean break from the gate, which should make her tough to catch. #2 Dreaming of Mo or #8 Golden Ghost are the horses that are most likely to press the lonely leader.

WORKOUT ANALYSIS

#2 Dreaming of Mo : Her work on Jan 19 probably earned her a shot at taking on these horses. It was excellent.

#7 Dana's Beauty: She bounced out of her last race nicely with big work on Dec 28 at Turfway Park.

#10 De Regreso: She put in a big effort on Jan 4 and has two nice works since as well.

TRENDING DOWN

#6 Sun Bee: She's been working a tad slow since her last race on Dec 29.

I really like #7 Dana's Beauty and #5 Sand and Sea in this spot. Both are very good on the synthetic surface, while some of the other runners don't have proven form over the track. Dana's Beauty should also get out to an easy early lead, which will make her tough to run down.

BET ANALYSIS

I'm not a huge fan of playing races on the synthetic surface on these big days of racing. I do like #7 Dana's Beauty, so I'll play something small with her involved, but it seems pointless to play this one for much money when there are so many good turf and dirt races on this card.

Summary: Like most turf sprint races, the pace is going to be rapid up front. Several of these runners like to blaze early, which will ensure we are going to see fast fractions. However, the best way to win these 5-furlong sprints is to get towards the front and try to hang on down the lane.

RACING DUDES

It's always fun when #9 Nobals runs! He is a fan favorite for sure, and nobody will forget his Breeders' Cup victory in 2023. He is also coming into this race off of an extremely sharp effort at Woodbine, where he beat a local horse that had been winning races in bunches at that track.

BET ANALYSIS

It's hard to pick against #9 Nobals after how he performed last time out at Woodbine. He gets back to the turf today, he's working like a monster, and this field leaves a lot to be desired. It should be a successful race for him if he shows up with his best effort.

This looks like a two-horse race to me between #5 Beautiful Love and #4 La Mehana. Beautiful Love was a solid fourth last time out at the Breeders' Cup, and that race will win in this spot. However, La Mehana defeated Beautiful Love in their only head to head match up, which makes this interesting.

BET ANALYSIS

This should be a fun race. I do not trust the favorite, so I'll play against her with a horse that has already beat her: #4 La Mehana. The price should be right, and I think this horse is on the improve for a good trainer. I see that Jon White agrees, which is a good thing.

BET ANALYSIS

I won't sugarcoat this when I say I hate this race. I wavered back and forth between several of these, but in the end I landed on #5 Tumbarumba. I don't like him enough to play a win, though, so I'll box him up with a few others that I like and try to create some value in this spot.

BET ANALYSIS

Picking #3 Rocket Can is not fun, but he seemed like the lesser of all the evils in this race. Don't waste much money here, it's hard to get a read on most of these runners. I also like too many short prices in a race like this, which is never a good feeling because you know none of these are that good.

PACE ANALYSIS

Pure Speed: Cathkin Peak, Goldeneye

Pressing Speed: Yamato

Stalkers: California Frolic, Anglophile, Lord Eddard Stark

Closers: Limited Liability, Harrow, Rockemperor, Utah Beach, Bold Act, Cash Equity

Summary: Most races going long on the turf lead to slow paces, and this race will be no different. Look for #3 Cathkin Peak to lead this field into the far turn. If they let him get too far ahead, he might sneak away and win this thing like he did three races back at Saratoga in a similar race.

RACING DUDES

WORKOUT ANALYSIS

TRENDING UP

#5 Anglophile: His recent work on Jan 19 suggests he might outrun his odds.

#10 Utah Beach: His last work on Jan 19 was one of his better moves in the morning.

#12 Cash Equity: He always seems to have a consistent work pattern.

TRENDING DOWN

#2 California Frolic: His recent works have been extremely slow.

#6 Lord Eddard Stark: His recent works have been a tad slower than normal.

#9 Rockemperor: He's never been a great work horse and that isn't changing.

#11 Bold Act just looks to be the class of the field for me. #1 Limited Liability also is a horse that should be formidable in this spot, as he is getting better with each race. It should be a full out sprint for home with the pace likely to be very slow, which is typical of long turf races.

BET ANALYSIS

This race is full of horses that have disappointed me over the years in different spots. #1 Limited Liability and #11 Bold Act definitely fit that description. They've been inconsistent, but they should handle this group today, especially Bold Act. He is the class of the field.

PACE ANALYSIS

Pure Speed: Raqiya

Pressing Speed: Ocean Club, Sacred Wish, See You Around

Stalkers: Pounce, Be Your Best

Closers: Watchtower, Fluffy Socks, Dona Clota, Minoushka, Papilio, Bless My Stars

Summary: We have a "lone speed" situation in this race, with #1 Raqiya looking to have a clear pace advantage over the rest of this field. She won in gate to wire fashion in her North American debut last time out at Del Mar, and should have every chance to do it again today.

#3 Be Your Best: Has been ultra-consistent in her recent workouts.

#8 Papilio: Her two recent workouts haven't been as fast as normal for her.

#10 Sacred Wish: She produces solid works nearly every time she's asked to do so.

BET ANALYSIS

This should be a fun race as #1 Raqiya tries to win her second straight start since shipping to the United States. She was awesome last time out at Del Mar, and you would think she would move forward off of that effort. She also looks like she might be loose on the lead, which is a big plus for her.

BET ANALYSIS

Pletcher looks to have a good horse on his hands as #1 Raqiya is with him now after making her United States debut at Del Mar. It didn't take much time to see she is the lone speed, which should play well over this Gulfstream Park turf course. Don't screw it up, Dettori.

Closers: Sterling Silver

Summary: We'll move back to the dirt for another sprint race, and like usual, the pace should be fairly hot up front. The main contenders in this race can also stalk the pace patiently if asked, which should make #7 Mystic Lake and #9 Emery tough to beat in this spot.

#1 Miuccia: Her works look slow compared to the rest of the horses in this race.

#6 Jody's Pride: She has fired three straight bullets leading up to this race.

#4 Haulin Ice: She hasn't been quite as sharp in her last two works at Palm Meadows.

#9 Emery: She's ready to run after a sizzling work on Jan 19 at Payson Park.

This one comes down to two horses: #7 Mystic Lake, and #9 Emery. I went with Emery out of the two runners. She seems to be just a touch faster overall, while she also defeated Mystic Lake back in the summer. Her only loss in 2024 came to Ways and Means, who had a monster season.

BET ANALYSIS

I'm confident #7 Mystic Lake or #9 Emery will win this race, but I'm also confident #4 Haulin Ice will run very well. So I will put the two I think can win on top in an exacta and also add Haulin Ice in second. I've cashed some big tickets using this strategy in the past.

Pure Speed: Major Dude, Spirit of St. Louis

Pressing Speed: Formidable Man, Win for the Money

Stalkers: Nations Pride, Battle of Normandy, Chasing the Crown

Closers: Siege of Boston, Mi Hermano Ramon, Integration, Balnikhov, Grand Sonata

Summary: It's hard to get a good read on what might happen in this race with the pace. It could go either way, as there are few horses that like to run close to the lead, but none of these horses are true speed burners. Since it's a two-turn turf event I wouldn't expect it to be overly fast.

#10 Battle of Normandy: His work on Jan 19 at Payson Park might be the best of his career.

When it comes to class, #7 Nations Pride is the one you want in this race. I wavered for a bit on this one, but in the end, I just think if Nations Pride shows up with his best race these horses can't beat him. If not, then there are some prices that will come into play.

BET ANALYSIS

I nearly picked #5 Integration but kept going back to #7 Nations Pride. He has let me down before, there is no doubt about that, but he is better than these horses if he runs well. There is no reason to think he won't today, especially since Buick is here to ride.

PACE ANALYSIS

Pure Speed: Saudi Crown

Pressing Speed: Mixto, Newgrange, Skippylongstocking

Stalkers: White Abarrio, Stronghold, Mystic Dan, Locked

Closers: Crupi, Steal Sunshine, Vitality, Power Squeeze

Summary: There is no doubt #2 Saudi Crown is going to play "catch me if you can" in this race. He is the fastest horse in the race by far; however, he is more of a miler and slows down when going longer. If he is far enough ahead will it matter? Can one of the stalkers or closers catch him? That is the biggest question coming into the race.

RACING DUDES

WORKOUT ANALYSIS

TRENDING UP

#4 White Abarrio: His works suggest he has a chance to get back to top form in this race.

#9 Mystic Dan: Same with this guy, who has worked well since his disastrous start in the Malibu.

#11 Locked: When healthy, this horse turns in consistent works every time they ask him to do so.

TRENDING DOWN

#1 Mixto: His workout pattern doesn't suggest he will move forward in this race.

#5 Crupi: He's a deep closing horse so you know he's usually going to work slowly.

#7 Steal Sunshine: His last few works leading up to this race don't look promising.

BET ANALYSIS

I've had this race in mind for #11 Locked ever since he returned to the races in October of 2024. He was sensational when winning the Cigar Mile (G2) last time out, but I really think we will see his best effort as he stretches out in distance today. He'll have a big year if he can stay healthy.

BET ANALYSIS

Pace makes the race, and it's hard to not see #2 Saudi Crown getting an easy lead in this spot. He is better at a mile, but if they leave him alone up front, he can win at this distance. Gulfstream Park also plays to his style, which is scary for the rest of these horses.
